A FAMILY SNAP.

New York Press.—Senator Butler sonorously announces to his South Carolina constituents that he is no office-broker. His appointment of his nephew to his committee clerkship indicates that privately he regards public office as a family snap.

+

NOT EARNING HIS SALT.

Potter's Dispatch.—My 'Commissioneer' Blount persists in keeping the public on the ragged edge of uncertainty in regard to the proposed resignation of his official charge in Hawaii. As the American people are unable to credit him with any act calculated to bring about a speedy and satisfactory solution of the Hawaiian question they would not object to the return of the Minister and the appointment of a successor who would earn his salary.

THE WILDCAT MONEY DANGER.

New York Press.—The suspension of several banks, both state and national, in California, and the private banks operated under the statutes of Pennsylvania adds another to the series of disastrous "object lessons" which the Democratic party is inflicting upon the country. One needs only to imagine the removal of the prohibitory tax upon currency issued by state banks to realize how multiplied and widespread would have been the suffering caused by these local suspensions if each of the private banks had had until quantities of its paper floating about the country as currency. As for the suspensions themselves they are but symptoms of the uneasiness caused by the accession of the Democratic party to power.

CLERGYMEN IN CONTEMPT.

Kentucky Journal.—Bishop Walden regards the opinion of the Federal Court of Appeals as a calamity. But where is any calamity about the matter it is to be found in the law of Congress, not in the opinion construing the law. But where is the calamity? There is no compulsion on any one as to the Fair. It is the privilege of every citizen to go to Chicago and be robbed or stay at home and be bored to death with the daily columns of talk of the Fair and all its belongings; it is his privilege to attend the Fair or the saisons of Chicago on Sunday evenings to nothing but attend his church to listen or to slumber as he listeth. There is no calamity in or about the Fair open or the Fair closed. The question has been decided by the proper tribunal and obedience to and respect for the law is enjoined on all. Clergymen should be slow to bring it into contempt.

OUR COURTS MUST DECIDE.

New York Press.—The newspapers that are vociferously assailing the Russian extradition treaty leave out supremely important fact out of sight altogether. This is the provision in the treaty which requires the guilt of the person who is to be proved to the satisfaction of an American Court of Justice. To assume that the courts of the United States, jealous as they unquestionably are of the prestige and authority of their country, and firmly committed as they are to the principle of human liberty, will consent to surrender any accused person to Russia whose guilt as a non-political offender is not clearly proven, is to assume what is manifestly and ridiculously false. The frantic clamor in certain quarters against the Russian treaty has no basis in justice or common sense. Let us not trust our own courts; then our whole system of Government is a failure.

A REPUBLICAN ROYALIST.

New York Press.—The Infanta Eulalia may have encountered some scenes and incidents during her too brief stay in this Republic which seemed strange and even surprising to her unfamiliar eyes, but at no time did she betray such emotion. Throughout her visit the royal princess, by her simplicity and naturalness of demeanor, her graceful tact and her charming acknowledgment of all attentions, proved well up to personal contact with her, or who sat her at a distance, or who read about her in the newspapers as a guest who met without a single failure the severe test of social conduct in a strange land, among people of foreign tongue and under the unceasing glare of publicity. We hope that Eulalia, both as Infanta and as Duchess of Montpensier, will carry with her to Spain as agreeable impressions of America and the American people as she leaves behind of her own winning personality and strength of character.
